

Geography Courses by Area of Emphasis:

| Globalization                           | Community, Development, &amp; Culture | Nature and Society           |
|--|--|-------------------------------------|
| 236: Globalization and Local Development       | 221: Eastern North America                   | 221: Eastern North America          |
| 301: Latin America & Caribbean                 | 222: Western North America                   | 222: Western North America          |
| 304: Middle East                               | 231: Introduction to Planning                | 240: Natural Hazards                |
| 307: Asia                                      | 236: Globalization and Local Development     | 241: Biogeography                   |
| 332: Migration Politics in a Globalizing World | 237: Cities                                  | 245: Environment & Society          |
| 338: Geopolitics                               | 301: Latin America & Caribbean               | 301: Latin America & Caribbean      |
| 339: Geography & Development                   | 304: Middle East                             | 325: Dynamic Climatology            |
|  | 331: Race and Place in America               | 326: Glacial Processes & Landscapes |
|  | 333: Regional Planning Seminar               | 327: Climate Change                 |
|  | 337: The Nature of Cities                    | 337: The Nature of Cities           |
|  | 339: Geography and Development               |                                     |

GEOG 360, Study Abroad; GEOG 485: Readings; GEOG 491: Individual Study, where relevant, may be used in any area of emphasis.

Relevant study abroad courses may be used to fulfill requirements in these areas of specialization, but must be approved by the Department prior to a student's departure.