

Virginian-Pilot 2023 internships

Description of organization:

The Virginian-Pilot and Daily Press are now hiring for 2023 newsroom internships. We're the largest newspaper in Virginia, and our newsroom features award-winning journalists eager to help you learn. Our coverage area includes many cities, miles of beaches, the world's largest Navy base and more. Interns are expected to be located in the Norfolk, Virginia, area and must be able to drive to assignments.

Internships offered:

Reporting: Produce a regular and compelling mix of stories, including news and features. Must be able to write accurately and meet deadlines.

Photography/videography: Cover one or more assignments a day and be able to capture compelling images that tell a story with accuracy and authenticity.

Audience engagement: Connect with our audiences using every platform available to us, including social media, newsletters, alerts and more. Experiment with new ways of reaching audiences.

Details and dates:

Internships are 12 weeks, and we pay $15 an hour. Interns can work a max of 38 hours a week. In 2023, we'll offer internships throughout the year. When applying, please note which internship period you're applying for, and which internship position (reporting, visuals, or audience) you're interested in.

- Winter: January-March. Deadline to apply: Oct. 14.
- Spring: April-June. Deadline to apply: Dec. 31.
- Summer: May or June-August. Deadline to apply: Nov. 11.
- Fall: August-November. Deadline to apply: March 31, 2023.

Required qualifications:

Must be enrolled in a degree-granting program, or be a recent graduate within the past year.

How to apply:

Apply by emailing internships@pilotonline.com. When applying, please indicate in the subject line which position(s) you're interested in, and when you're interested in interning here.
