Sam Mapsalot – Supporting Materials

I will be attending the 2017 annual meeting of the American Association of Geographers (SEDAAG) in Boston, Massachusetts. The travel dates for this conference are April 5 through April 9. I will be presenting a paper I am working on as an independent study project with Dr. Caitlin Finlayson of the Department of Geography entitled “Global Trends of Ugly Food: Analyzing Geographic Patterns Based on Search Interest.” This paper uses Google Trends to analyze interest in the search term “Ugly Food” both spatially and temporally. Using Google Trends as a framework for analyzing international interest in Ugly Food will help provide a better understanding of the global reach of the Ugly Food Movement, and how it is understood across the world. I am a Geography major and am interested in attending graduate school for Geography. This is a national geography conference which will feature presentations, posters, and workshops, as well as a graduate school and job fair. By presenting at this conference and attending sessions I will be able to engage in scholarly research at the national level and will be far more prepared to pursue an advanced degree in geography.
